

[In this reading: The social order: ego, individuality, sharing, community and responsibility] Taken from a private reading:

Light Beings: It is a time now when every entity is going to need to take inventory of the life they are presently living and if it is not moving forward in a relatively smooth way, a regrouping is necessary. Many are having to reevaluate their needs, their desires and are realizing that much of what they are spending both their energy and resources on are not of consequence and are not giving satisfaction. The intimacy that is desired in relationship has no longer been as important as accumulating and that is leaving a large hole in the life of the many. There is no longer the connection with family or with friends that last a lifetime. Many will meet people, spend some time with them, and move on and forget the connection. There is emptiness in most existences at this time on the planet. Only those that are making connection with Source and with community are finding themselves truly fulfilled. Ego has many times taken over completely and the need for perfection has kept many from allowing themselves to connect at a deep level. The idea of being so vulnerable is very scary for many and so they spend a lifetime in the aloneness and emptiness and wonder why nothing gives them the satisfaction it once did. Many are looking outside themselves through technology and accumulating until things become the main focus and living entities no longer are as important. If there is not a global shift in that respect the human race is going to find itself in much more chaos than is present at this time. Your American government is a good indication that no longer is it as important to accomplish goals that benefit the many as it is to prove that the ego of a group is right and the consequences of such a way of being can be fatal to an individual, to a group or to a country. What was most important in the early days of your country was working together to build a better life. No one had to ask to help or be helped. It was a given that if you were in a community you would be a part of it and that meant you were responsible for your neighbor as well as yourself, and they felt the same. So there was an equal exchange. It is important that this becomes more prevalent again for the country to survive. There can not be rifts among neighbors, among governments or countries for there to be any movement forward.

There is no longer the need for small groups that set members up to believe they are different or special. The community can be there but more flowing and without all the structure that has been in the past. Like minds can come together and accomplish much at a grass roots, but it needs to be in a way that is not ego driven. Each choice must be made with the betterment of the whole in mind. That does not mean that each entity cannot express individually their own talents and ideas, but it does mean that no longer is there a need for the small few to be the ones that make decisions and exclude the many. It will be a different way of being. Leadership is still needed, but more as equals and when one talent is needed the person with that gift will step up to the plate and when another is needed then they will step back for the next person to take the lead. It will be a much more flowing existence and there can be much less need to own and to accumulate. There can be a much greater sharing, and yet it will not be as your communes of the past. Again those groups usually had a leader with ego driven motives, even if it did not start that way. As soon as the ego takes the lead in any group, it will begin to form oppositions and you will find stalemates and lack of growth much as you now see in your government.