

[In this reading: Time collapse, perception, rapid technological change, need for discipline, earth changes, responsibility.]

Question: Time seems to be absolutely collapsing. There is never enough time to do half the things needed to be done. Is this a true collapse or is it just our perception of time?

Light Beings: There are many factors involved in your “time collapse”. It is above all the change in the flow of time as you know it on the planet earth that is changing. But much of what you are presently experiencing is the shift of your own vibrational rates and they are not yet in sync with the planets vibration or with the Universal changes that are developing. As you must be aware, you are rapidly bringing your planet to the point of no return on resources and are making little effort in any area to understand, and certainly not to find, solutions to the many problems you have created for yourselves.

As you have implemented the new technologies, supposedly to make your lives easier with less labor, you have created another hazard -that of being sedentary without purpose. Many of you have no real insight into what your life is about, nor do you seem to feel it is necessary to be in touch with your higher selves, or to try to understand this thing you are presently experiencing that you call “time collapse”. What you are not taking into consideration are the many changes that have taken place in your societies in the past 200 years, that of no longer truly connecting with one another, not even in the family units, and not understanding that without this connection to both family and to the larger global family there is a huge piece that you need to feel complete missing in your lives. You are filling your lives with triteness, not very important in the total picture of your planet, such as the hours spent with your computer, TV, or books, and not truly interacting with those around you. It is no longer uncommon for children to be brought up in a house that does not even resemble the togetherness that existed in homes several years ago. We are not speaking of centuries, but of just a few decades. You have allowed technology to become the God of your choice.

It is no different than any period of your history, of course. You as entities on the earth have always looked outside yourself and worshipped something that you felt had more power than you had. It was much easier to blame the Sun God for your crop failures, just as it is now easier to blame the violence on your TVs and movies as responsible for the condition of your youths. There is an ebb and flow in your Universe that has been always ignored, and even the cycles that exist in both your histories and in the planetary influences and weather. Instead of looking at the progression of each of your lives and understanding that it is a finite world of duality you live in, you prefer to numb yourselves with externals and ignore the fact that all things on the planet are constantly in flux, changing, and that no one thing or one way of being can be static. So, for the past century you have focused on the technology, many times simply ignoring the many warning signs such as greater and greater illnesses even in your more technologically advanced areas, and you have ignored what is happening to your food supply with its many preservatives, and shown lack of concern for what those additives are doing to the human structure. You have become so addicted to technology and its ability to give you instant feedback about things that you could never access only a few years ago that you have lost the ability to use many of the abilities such as empathy, touch, and the ability to truly feel pleasure.

The reason you are now sensing a “time collapse” is the lack of preparation for what is happening on your planet. If an entity was prepared for the transition, the shift in both the planet’s vibration and the change in the human body structure, it would be an easy transition to make without the chaos you are presently experiencing. But due to the change in priorities, change in the ability to work in a more unified way in smaller units, there is a deep unrest developing in the masses.

We have been speaking to you for many years about the corruption or the crumbling of the foundations of your present socio and economic environment. That is rapidly now transpiring, and you are going to find it more and more difficult to ignore the many breaks in your social order. People are sensing the change, and fear is now making choices for many instead of decisions being made from a centered and understanding position. It is of utmost importance to begin a review of each of your present circumstances and be brutally honest about where you are mentally and physically in this change. You will find that if you have the ability to step outside your comfort zone of wanting all to remain as it is or was you will recognize that life on your planet is so rapidly changing that most systems are no longer viable. It is time for you to recognize that time is a creation of the earth plane, and does not exist outside your three dimensional world, but as long as you are on the planet of duality with day and night, seasons, and earth years, you are going to need to address the element of time. And that means understanding the vibrational shifts and how it is affecting you and how time is changing in both perception and in the way it is to be addressed.

For you to find center in your Universe and enjoy your planet you are going to need a direction that is somewhat different than the direction you have been focusing on. Most of you are very unhappy with your governments, with your jobs, with your daily existence. But time is not the reason for this unrest. It is your perception that is ruling the way you are living your lives. If you would shut down your TV and computers, not use your microwaves and avoid any car trips for one week, you would realize that time is not your issue. Time has seemed to have radically changed, but in reality it is simply your perception and the way you have chosen to spend your time. How many of you spend any time contemplating your existence, and working toward a more peaceful one? How many of you contemplate the earths' dilemma and are seeking solutions? How many of you are taking responsibility for the position you find yourself in? How many want relationships that are satisfying, jobs that are fulfilling, but make no effort to work toward such a goal, and in the meantime are filling their time with useless information or ideas that do not benefit themselves or anyone else on your planet?

We have said before that this is a time for a responsibility check. It is a time that each of you analyze what is right in your life and what is not working, and begin to make the changes needed to correct. It is also a time for you to analyze what you allow in your life both in people, things and ideas, and make an effort to be discerning so that what you are exposed to on a daily basis resonates to what your soul needs to exist in your changing realities.

No longer can you ignore the “time collapse” as you have called it. It is now your choice to continue on this downhill spiral you have chosen as a group on the planet, or to step outside your thinking of the past, and recognize that you need a total shift in perception and then a total shift in the way you are handling your technologies. It is much the same as what happened in your discovery and ultimate use of sugar. It was a most pleasurable addition to your human diet, but instead of monitoring the progress of this new food, excesses of use have now created a monster of obesity and disease. No longer is it a pleasurable discovery to be used sparingly. Excesses are the same in any new introduction on your planet, and technologies of every description are being abused in much the same way as sugar.

It is not the discovery, but the inability to discipline, that has created your many, many issues in both mental and physical health, economic chaos, and instability. Discipline of both mind and body are a necessity that has not yet been recognized by the greater numbers on your planet. Excesses need to be addressed, and you will find greed, dishonesty, atrophy of body, mind, and spirit can take a corrected course with awareness and discipline.
