

Charles: One of our friends feels there could be a crash in the stock market and possibly a large downturn in the economy very soon, possibly starting in Sept and Oct 2015. Do you have any thoughts on this?

Light Beings: He is picking up that, yes, there are going to be some rather large shifts in Sept. and Oct. globally. Some of the shifts are going to be connected with what is happening in the Middle East. There will be more upheaval, and some things can happen that could create a lot of difficulty with Turkey and Egypt as well as the other countries that are already in conflict. Of course, when we say this, we must also say that this is a possibility, it is not an absolute. But the way things are moving at this time — and some of the underground plans that are taking place, there could be some explosive — how can we say this? Retribution will be the way it will be seen from the other countries that will be somewhat involved. So that is a possibility.

There can also be some earth upheavals. That also is not an absolute. But a very good possibility that the West coast could be — perhaps not a major earthquake, but an upheaval on the West coast, and it could have to do with the drought that they are presently experiencing.

There are also going to be huge shifts in the frequencies on the earth plane in September and October that are going to make some great changes in the physicality of the entities on the planet. This is very difficult to explain because the subtle energies that are involved in this shift are not going to be something that scientists are going to easily be able to pinpoint, but it will be a shift that will affect the consciousness of all entities, human entities especially, on the planet. And it will manifest as an opening, so-to-speak, of the way the frontal cortex of the brain actually works. If one has worked on oneself consciously it will be an easy transition and one will be able to make decisions much easier, see possibilities better, move in ways that will be almost seen as without effort. But for those who are resisting the opening of consciousness, the moving forward in, should we say, a higher level of being, they will experience it differently and find that they are struggling with many, many things they are confronted with, both physically and psychologically. So there will be a lot of conflict both within their own being, and without, with other beings they come in contact with. So you will see a division many times in families, and many times in political arenas where there is almost a complete and absolute division, where there can be no compromises. And that, within itself, can create huge, huge issues.

So that is all that he is picking up on, this shift that is going to change much of the way that life has been known on the planet in subtle ways, in ways that will be difficult to always pinpoint. It will not always be something that you can reach out and touch, but you will feel the differences. And those, as we said, that have become more conscious, will have the ability many times to lead those that are not as conscious, and it will be important for them to take that initiative and take that step into that leadership for those that are not at that point and have a great need to see a way to be different and don't know how because of the confusion, the conflict within themselves and without.

The true state of consciousness is when the soul and the mind are not in conflict, when both understand the same purpose and move forward in the same direction. This is what we mean by those that have worked on their consciousness. They are more open to recognizing what the soul wants and what the mind needs, and they become one and the same. That is what many call enlightenment, when there is absolutely no conflict between what you would call the subconscious and the conscious, in that the subconscious is your programming, so to speak, and the conscious can help reprogram so that there is not the conflict any longer.

Q: Why would the lack of harmony or discord between the soul and the mind be more difficult for us when the earth plane's vibration continues to rise? People have lived with their own personal status quo up until now, difficult at times, yes, but they could still expand at their own rate, so why will there be a greater difficulty, or should I say, consequence coming along for those out of synch to a certain degree?

LBs: When you move into quantum, for instance, everything is of a much higher vibration, and that is when thought can truly shape. And so, as the vibration shifts and increases, the cells in the physical body are moving at a faster rate; in other words the entire body is less dense. Can you understand that?

Q: No. Are you saying that scientists looking at cells under a microscope will see faster action? Less density in terms of more light could get in?

LBs: More light will come in, yes, but they will not see that because it will be at such a quantum level. It will be far below the neutron and the quark. It's going to be at that quantum level where the vibrational changes will take place. And so the body will not be as dense.

Q: And if the body is not as dense the conscious and subconscious may rub themselves the wrong way if they are not in concert?

LBs: As the body becomes more of the light, which is what happens when it becomes less dense, it becomes more aware, even if it's not apparent. In other words, there will be a change in the way the brain is actually receiving information, but it will be so subtle it will not be easily explained, so it will be confusing to people who are not aware of..

Q: Can you give us examples of why people will have discord? Why would receiving more light create that?

LBs: Having more light is not what creates it, and it is not easy to explain in a term that will make good sense to you at this time, but let us say if we can give you an example; for instance, someone who is living on the planet in a day-to-day way with their actions coming basically almost all from programming, not any real conscious thinking about why they do what they do. They are reacting from programming. You understand how that works. As their vibration shifts to a higher vibration, they are going to receive information in a little different way. It may not be understood why they are receiving it in a different way, but it is because of this that their soul is able to communicate a little bit more, and so it becomes confusing to them. Say, for instance, they are a very religious bent, and they go to church every Sunday and they pray and follow all the rules of the literature and believe 100% in what they have been taught. As the vibration shifts, there is a little more light, and so a little doubt slips in because they begin to see things differently. As they see those things differently and begin to question, there becomes an inner conflict with the programming and an outer conflict with the family, because the family has not yet reached that point. Do you see?

It is the shift that has brought in the ability to see from a different perspective. And it will happen in many, many scenarios, because all entities will be affected in one way or another; but because each person is at a different vibrational level already, it will affect different people in a different way.

Even when someone becomes more and more conscious of what they are doing and the programming is not affecting their lives any longer, it does not necessarily mean it's an easy path because every choice they make that is different than choices in the past is going to affect those around them, and that creates within itself a ripple effect. It's much as someone who has an illness, say a chronic illness, and they begin to see a way to perhaps heal themselves, and they begin to get well. All of a sudden they recognize if they get well they're going to lose the attention that they had been receiving, and so they slip back into the illness.

It's very interesting how the human body, the human mind, can actually convince one of something that is totally not of benefit to them. Because of the way they have believed through culture, peers, and family they cannot make the change needed. It will be easier as the vibration changes for those that have that inclination, but there will be many that will simply become confused, and not be able to break those belief systems, and those are the ones who are going to have the most difficulty.

Q: I'm concerned about the totalitarian regime in North Korea because of its nuclear weapons and wonder if a peace treaty will ever be signed or if the two Koreas will become unified again.

LBs: They have a very unstable leader and there are many that are at the top that see the inability of this person to be a true leader. There could easily be a coup, an upheaval, an uprising against him if he continues to even remain in the position he is in. It's a very, very unstable situation and it may well be that something there could change dramatically.

Q: If it does, and the leadership is changed, would the probabilities then be for a toning down of the potential conflict between the Koreas, and maybe someday there would be a reunification?

LBs: The cultures are extraordinarily different, so it would be very difficult for there to be, as you say, a reunification, but there certainly can be an ease of tension.

Q: Does the Chinese government truly feel most all of the South China Sea is theirs, and this is why they are so set on physically taking control of that area? Or is it from a general sense of a need to expand their resources that they are destabilizing the region?

LBs: Let us say that there are some that are greedy it could not matter to them if it's theirs now or not. They want it and they're going to have it with their own methods. So it has little to do with should they feel it is theirs. It is simply something they feel at this time is what they need for their expansion. It has nothing to do with fairness.

Q: Are they of a mindset, like the US has been for many years, that they want to expand their power?

LBs: The leaders feel already that they are a superpower. They have a different way of looking [at things]. Their culture is very different than anyone else's on the planet and there is a drive to become recognized as a power. Respect is extremely important to them, and they are wanting that more than, perhaps, even economic power. It is the respect that is the most important to them. And so they are going to do whatever it takes — to appear, at least — to become more congruent with the rest of the world; to obtain respect.

Q: And by congruent you mean...?

LBs: To become more in the playing field of the rest, using the rules of the rest of the world. But in reality, that's not really their culture. They need and want the respect, so they're going to play the game so that they appear, at least, to behave in the way a true power would behave.

Q: Is there anything you want to say in closing to anyone anywhere?

LBs: The earth is going through some enormous changes and so are the entities on the planet. And it is a time when there will be many who choose to leave. And there will be upheavals on many pockets of the planet because of the shifts that are going on. There is confusion when there are shifts because things are not as they appeared before, and there will be a lot of chaos within many regions because the leaders are having the same difficulties as any other entity would have, of seeing things not quite the way they've always seen them, and adjusting to this new shift, this new way of being. So the certainty that you would normally see in a politician may not be present any longer, and those that appear to be certain may be those very ones who have not made the shift yet, and may be the ones that step forward, but only for a short period of time.

So, if we really wanted to offer guidance through this period, we would encourage any entity to focus first within, and recognize the conflicts that may be going on there, and work on understanding that there are shifts going on. Fear does not need to be a part of that shift, that it is a natural evolution of your planet and of the entities present, and it is simply a matter of adjusting to a new way of being, that can in the future benefit all because it will be of an easier path for choices to be made from the conscious level. When one works from the conscious, then the outcome is always of benefit.

© 2015 Joyce B. Cary. All rights reserved, except this format of the Light Beings' Q&A may be printed from <http://www.askthelightbeings.com> for personal use or sharing so long as this notice is attached. Permission is needed for any other reproduction or use.